SACRAMENTO, Calif.—October 29, 2012—The California Coalition Against Sexual Assault (CALCASA), in partnership with the Women of Color Network (WOCN), a project of the National Resource Center on Domestic Violence (NRC DV), have been granted an award to establish a national training & technical assistance project, entitled Leadership Education and Advancement for Professionals (LEAP).

“This funding will allow CALCASA and the WOCN to work collaboratively to provide skills and professional development training to leaders of color within the anti-violence against women field, in order to assist with their advancement to management or executive leadership positions. We will work toward a common goal of increasing the number of managers and leaders of color around the nation and ultimately leading to more inclusive service delivery for sexual assault and domestic violence survivors of color,” said Sandra Henriquez, CALCASA executive director.

“We are truly excited to work with CALCASA, a long-time partner, on such an amazing project” said Tonya Lovelace, Director of WOCN. “LEAP will allow WOCN and CALCASA to move to the next level of leadership programming by offering advanced training and technical assistance to elevate women of color advocates and activists who are already poised for potential leadership roles, and will enable us to reach those who are often the least likely group to receive mentoring and support.”

Both organizations, CALCASA and the WOCN have a demonstrated commitment and expertise in nurturing and developing the leadership of anti-violence against women advocates of color. We applaud the U.S. Department of Justice, Office on Violence Against Women for recognizing the need for such a project, and for selecting this collaboration between CALCASA and the WOCN to receive a three-year grant award.
